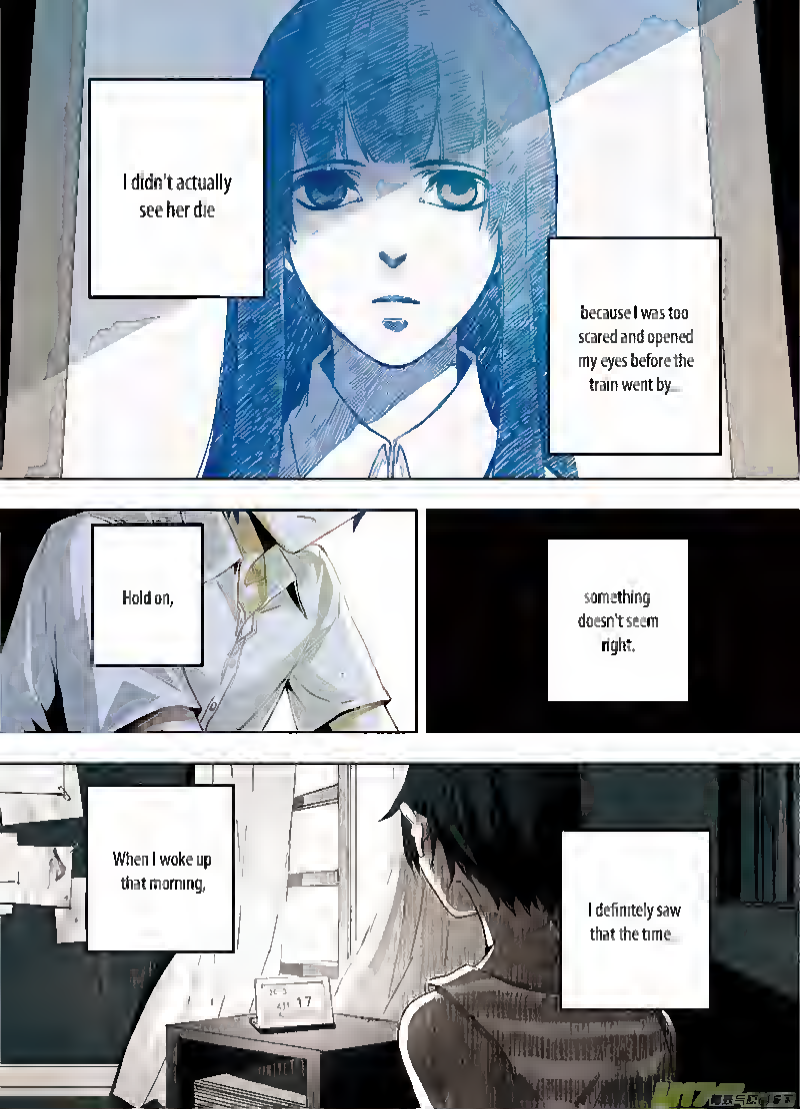
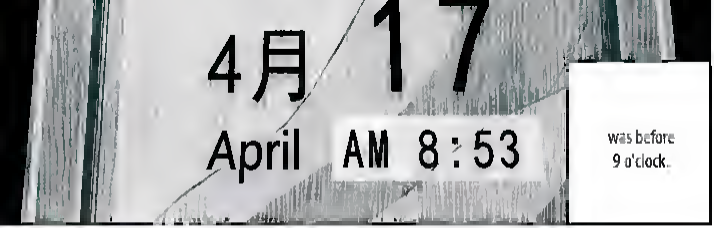
The life cut-off date...
Does it really mean the time of death?

But, then again,



I didn't actually see her die
because I was too scared and opened my eyes before the train went by...
Hold on,
something doesn't seem right.
When I woke up that morning,
I definitely saw that the time



4月 17
April AM 8:53
was before 9 o'clock.

ut-off date:
ril 17th 1999, 9:11 AM

A difference of 18 minutes.

In that time...

Could something have happened that I didn't see?

IN
What is the connection between us?
What happened fourteen years ago?
Why did you kill yourself?
I must

I must...

Ha……

This is not where Xiaoya died, and the time isn't the same either...
Doing this won't necessarily let me know what happened then, but I still want to try...
Ah... Even if this isn't the same time or the same tracks, the last scenery I will see
is the same.

...The train is coming.
How close should I let it get before I get up?
If I don't have time to escape....

And if I don't have time to escape?
Did I really plan on escaping?

I don't want to escape.
Xiaoya is already dead.
Anyways, I only have a year left.
It is better to...

just die like this.
